

First 90 Days

Helping you to take advantage of the early gains and avoid the high stakes risks of a new role

We provide you with a targeted program which leverages the research on what counts in the first few weeks and months of a new position. By providing you with the right tools and processes we help to make sure you land well early and are set up for long-term success.

The program gives you structured and intentional space to decompress, reflect, strategise and more quickly process the huge volumes of information and competing priorities calling on your attention.

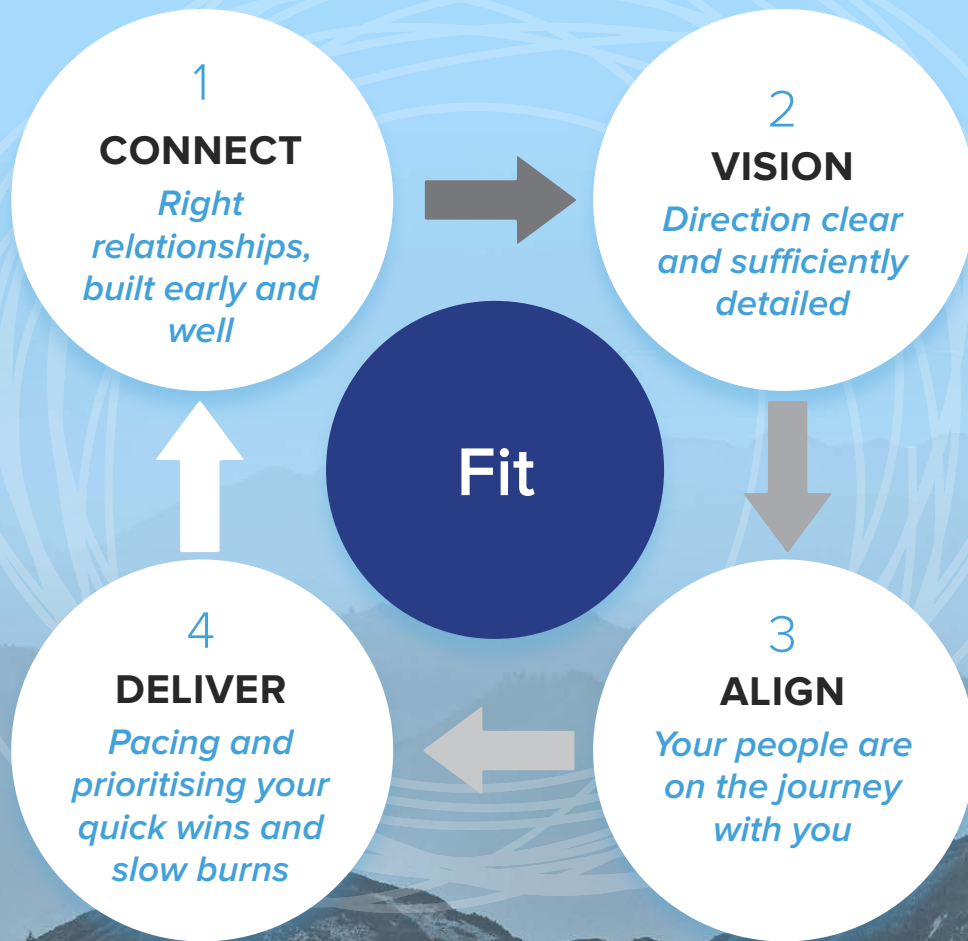

We help to make sure that in the rush to deliver and land well you take advantage of valuable opportunities, deliver the quick wins, get critical relationships off on the right footing, pick up sensitive cultural cues and rightly judge priorities.

The result is a smoother and less stressful landing for everyone, meaning that the value that was spotted in the recruitment phase gets fully realised as quickly and reliably as possible.

Your roadmap for landing well

“The First 90 Days program was invaluable because it gave focus to critical areas early in the tenure of our new CEO.

Elise has a style that makes it easy to open up about the thorny issues and she facilitates discussions very well, offering good insights. The combination of her skills and the structured approach meant healthy discussions took place.

Preparing the KPIs and assisting guide the suggested allocation of time for the new CEO was very helpful as well. I would highly recommend it.”
